A STATE CHARITY TAX

F. M. ISSERMAN

Just as the state levies a tax on incomes to support its institution, so the state should levy a tax on incomes to support philanthropies. This is the conclusion to which many leaders in social service work have arrived and this will be the salvation of organized philanthropy. Creative energies of community leaders, which should be expended in constructive endeavour, are dissipated in the frenzy of campaigns for funds, in cajoling from the community the moneys needed for philanthropy. Not only is much good effort diverted from constructive work to the collecting of funds, but organized campaigns are costly and expensive. And even after such campaigns, the problem of collecting the pledges still remains and entails further expense. On top of all these obvious disadvantages of our present money-raising system, is the fact that the burdens of the community charities are borne by the generous, while many of the rich who are selfish and who, to use a slang expression, are "tightwads," escape from their just obligations and give as little as they can.

The state has the machinery to collect funds. It is the best and cheapest collector we know. It never fails to collect its taxes. By having the state collect the charity funds, the tremendous cost in every and any of our campaigns would be completely eliminated.

The state, furthermore, by a tax on incomes can distribute equitably the share each individual should pay. No one will be able to dodge his philanthropic duties, as no one can avoid paying his full share towards his country's war debt.

All will agree so far with the theory that the state could collect charity funds more easily and with less expense than any other institution, and that at the same time it could apportion fairly each individual's share in the charitable ventures. The last question to answer is whether the state should undertake philanthropic work. It does already. The state does subsidize hospitals and poor relief. It maintains institutions for the feeble-minded and insane. It has developed clinics and organized health bureaus. Poverty leads to crime, and if the state is interested in suppressing crime, it should be interested in eliminating poverty. Disease makes for poverty. For misfits, for public wards. Lack of suitable recreation for our youth leads to the development of gangs and their bad morale. The work of all philanthropic institutions by protecting and nourishing, sustaining unfortunates among our citizenry, makes for a better society in the future and a stronger state. The state should support the charities. The state can very easily collect funds for the charities. The state can eliminate the waste of campaigns, and take the burden from the generous few and place it where it belongs on the shoulders of all according to their incomes. No drive for charity funds should fail. In Toronto for the past years some drives have failed. With a state charity tax, these failures will not recur and our social service workers will be able to develop all their energies towards administering to their wards, and not towards begging for money.

A COMMUNITY WITHOUT BOOKS

Last week, in discussing editorially the character of our local Jewish community, we mentioned by way of illustrating a certain point, the fact that in Toronto we have not a single Jewish library adequately equipped to meet the needs of an intelligent community.

The lack of a Jewish library in Toronto indicates a serious gap in our communal development and it is high time that the matter was given consideration by our communal leaders.

It is true that our public libraries have a certain number of Jewish books on their shelves, as well as one or two Jewish newspapers on their racks. But the numbers and range are so limited, and the cataloguing is so inexpertly done, that the Jewish department is practically valueless. Any one desiring to familiarize himself with any phase of Jewish literature or scholarship would soon discover the inadequacy of the Jewish shelf in the general library.

There are also several libraries maintained by certain Jewish cultural organizations, such as the Poale Zion Youth Clubs, Young Judaea, and some of the Socialist groups. But these libraries are small, partizan and not open to the general public. With the limited means at their disposal they favor the type of literature which is in harmony with their special views. Besides, they are housed so poorly as to be uninviting to any but the enthusiasts of their sponsoring organizations.

By no stretch of the imagination therefore can these libraries be represented as answering the need in the community for a properly equipped Jewish library.

It is hardly conceivable that any one will dispute the basic assumption of the necessity of such an institution. People may hold divergent views on the formulas of Judaism or the question of Jewish nationalism, but no modern person will deny the value and the desirability of a knowledge of Jewish cultural achievement. Even the extreme assimilationist, who is breathlessly fleeing from his Jewish shadow, must, if he pauses for a moment, admit that it were well to know the nature of the thing from which he seeks to escape. In a city where the general population maintains public libraries, the Jewish section cannot afford to maintain an attitude of indifference towards so elementary a public need as a library.

We have a considerable body of students who are unable to give Jewish studies the necessary place in their scheme of learning because of the want of an inviting reference library. We have a mass of older people who are craving for literature in the languages with which they are familiar. Our entire youth would have less excuse for being ignorant when it comes to Jewish matters if facilities were afforded for contact with Jewish literary and scholarly products. In modern society, under modern conditions, ignorance of matters appertaining to one's daily concerns is calamitous and unpardonable.

Now the question arises: To whom are we to look for remedial action?

Primarily, one would suggest the Zionists. These are the element which thinks most profoundly on Jewish subjects. Zionism involves a deep understanding of the meaning of Jewish values. The Zionists are therefore the ones who should be the first to recognize the im-

Every Friday

In a number of statements by foremost workers in American Jewish communal life printed in the Jewish Forum under the heading, "Problems Deserving Chief Consideration," the problem mentioned most often is that of Jewish education. In them there is a call for educational facilities to meet the demands of the next quarter of a century, a call for a Jewishly educated laity, for institutions for the training of teachers. The Jews now want educational effort among the younger generation and they want teachers who will "develop appreciation and love of the beautiful things in life and prevent deterioration into a shallow, materialistic existence," no less. It is agreed that rabbis, scholars and teachers can not constitute a people no matter how well they know how to exhort, instruct or point the way.

But most of the talk about Jewish education, when it begins to take concrete form, surrounds money advanced by the bank on notes, drives for funds, mortgages, a heating system ventilation and the like. There is too little agitation for the best teachers acquired by adequate pay. Adequate pay for teachers for a Talmud Torah, say, should be based on what it costs a man or family of education, taste and refinement to live decently with room for luxuries that teachers as well as pants-manufacturers are likely to need on top of bread. If it is the aim of a board of directors to educate the young, the means to that end demands excellent, happy, satisfied teachers as much as it includes attractive rooms, lots of light, beautiful walls and showers in the basement.

The most done-to-death word in the American language of this decade is service. Men no longer labour and sweat for profit, for the good things of life, for positions of influence or honour. They do it in the altruistic service of the race, of their fellows, for the well-being of man. They used to work frankly for family, fame, even for fun, but now it is for service, in service. The corner newsboy sells papers for service; the bootblack, the dry cleaner, the expensive hotel, the paid worrier over the starving poor, etc., etc., all live in the ideal of service as interpreted by the Rotary Club. Now comes the Jewish newspaper, the Western Jewish News of Winnipeg, which goes to press weekly, dedicated to the service of the Jewish people of Western Canada, as seen by H. E. Wilder, publisher of the Yiddish Israelite Press, too.

In the old halcyon days there was only the Israelite Press in Winnipeg and there were no competitors for the pure joy of serving the people. Then the Review appeared and, of course, still does. Later came the Winnipeg Jewish Post, printed in English, and it got out quite a neat New Year number which, at this distance, looked as though it combined altruism, service to the community, etc., etc., with justice and remuneration to the publisher as a well-behaving paper should. So all in all, coarse and crass though it may be to suggest it perhaps (besides the lofty ideal of enjoining readers to follow nobler, higher Canadian ideals and aspirations) the new Western Jewish News is also committed to giving its nearest competitor the needles.

Part of the service which the Western Jewish News will supply may be illustrated by the following dressy item, a trifle gaudy but thorough:

"Dr. and Mrs. I. Pearlman were the recipients of many congratulations from the hundreds of friends who came to their at home last Sunday, at their new spacious residence, on the corner of Burrows and Charles.

"After exploring and admiring the large, generously appointed and tastefully furnished rooms, designed along the most modern architectural lines, the ladies were taken charge of by Mrs. Pearlman, supported by a host of friends, and served with refreshments, from a richly covered table, presided over by Mrs. Keller and others.

"The men were conducted by Dr. Pearlman downstairs in the commodious office adjoining the dispensary, endowed with the latest medical instruments and appliances, transformed for the night into most hospitable men's club quarters, which the guests found difficult to leave."

The above excerpt illustrates along with the Russian revolution that almost anything can happen once Fate puts her mind to it. Not many months ago the Israelite Press, following the western tour of a REVIEW advertising expert, read the REVIEW right out of the journalistic field. In an editorial in what purported to be English, it spat invective, tore up the ground and went into a wood alcohol spasm, calling the REVIEW a "bedroom sheet," and this column its worst part. A "bedroom sheet," translated from the Yiddish, means something like a personal mention newspaper, and the Western Jewish News, in its confession of faith, says that it will present "in an easy, yet careful, readable form, such items, news information as will enable readers to keep in touch with one another, to become more interested in each other, etc., etc." A bedroom sheet, by the beard of the prophet!

But times, minds and situations change and under pressure of the people's hunger for service even the Yiddish fall, so the Israelite Press has a new baby sister! El el el el el f.f.c.

Social Life in 1902—

Do You Remember?—

Mrs. D. Benwick, Hallowell Avenue, Westmount, had as her guest her sister, Miss Isaacs, of Syracuse. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jacobs returned from Europe. Mrs. A. H. Jackson returned from St. Rose. Miss Schwarsenski was at home in honour of her engagement to I. Goldstein. She wore grey voile over old rose. Bernard Samuel left on a trip to Vancouver. Mrs. Jackels, of Syracuse, visited her daughter, Mrs. Lewis, City Hall Avenue. Frank Sternberg, of Toronto, spent a week with his aunt, Miss Sternberg, McGill College Avenue. Mrs. Blum and Miss Lissie Schwarsenski left for New York to attend their cousin's wedding. Miss Sassenwein, Crescent Street, won prizes for painting and work in burnt wood. Miss Rose Lichtenheim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lichtenheim, was engaged to Leon Goldsmith, of Cincinnati. Bernard Gordon, son of E. M. Gordon, was a student at high school on a government scholarship which he won. Rabbi H. Abramowitz, of the Jewish Theological Seminary, of New York, occupied the pulpit of McGill College Avenue Synagogue, Shaar Hashomayim. Mrs. Henry Jacobs gave dresses which she had made to twenty-four little girls at the Baron de Hirsch School. Mrs. H. Lazarus spent a few days in Quebec. Mrs. Louis Green, of St. John, N.B., visited Mrs. Gustave Fischel, Crescent Street. Mark Cohen, of Toronto, was in Montreal. Mrs. S. Vinberg and child, of Brockville, were visiting Mrs. N. Lewis, St. Mark Street. Mrs. H. Hyman, of Gaspe, was with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Goldstein, St. Matthew Street. Mrs. L. Fraid and daughter were visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. Kellert, McKay Street. L. S. Margolies returned from Quebec. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Landau (née Miss Hart, of St. John, N.B.), were in town. Their wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Solomon H. Hart, 109 Germain Street, St. John. The parlor was decorated with palms, ferns and flowers and the ceremony took place under a canopy of gold and blue held by four nephews of the bride wearing white silk prayer scarves. Rabbi Welenski performed the strictly orthodox ceremony. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Abraham Isaacs. A. S. Hart, brother of the bride, was best man. Miss Hart wore blue broadcloth, hat of grey and white chiffon and ostrich feathers and carried white roses. Miss Ruby Isaacs, bridesmaid, wore white, white picture hat and carried pink roses. Sylvia Isaacs, maid of honour, strewed flowers in the bride's path. The groom gave the bride a diamond crescent and the bridesmaid a pearl crescent.

Sherbrooke, Que.

A tea and bridge were given Sunday evening, October 16, at the Community Centre by Mesdames Jack Kushner and Samuel W. Smith. Prizes were won by Mrs. David Echenberg, Miss Florence Kushner, Morris Greenberg and Jack Kushner. A picture was raffled and won by J. Schwartz.

Jack Franklin, Montreal, spent a few days in Sherbrooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee and daughter, of Cowasville, Que., spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. Rosenbloom, Quebec Street.

Mrs. P. Kushner, Wellington Street, is visiting in town for a few weeks.

The Rachel Smith Edgar Chapter of Hadassah met at the Community Hall. Plans were made for winter affairs.

Mrs. B. Cohen and Mrs. Mittleman will be joint hostesses at a tea and bridge Sunday evening, October 31.

Joe Schwartz spent a few days in Montreal.

Jack Kushner left for Quebec and other points and will be away a few weeks.

A. D. Smith spent the week-end in Montreal.

The ladies of the congregation held a tea at the Community Centre Monday evening, October 18.

Jack Kushner spent a few days in St. John, Que., and Montreal.

Mrs. Elman, Montreal, spent a few days in Sherbrooke.

Miss Pearl Kushner spent the week-end in Montreal.

Among the foreign languages to be taught in the new Greek University established at Salonika, Hebrew will occupy a prominent place, according to the decision of the Greek authorities. The Jewish community of Salonika organized a reception in honour of the Rectoral committee of the University and in the addresses delivered by a number of the professors emphasis was laid upon the importance of cultural collaboration between Greeks and Jews. Professor Gratsios, professor of Latin Literature, said that one of the aims of the University would be to develop that collaboration, and that the doors of the institution would always be wide open to Greeks and to Jews alike.

To You Who Haven't Tried It!

WE are so confident that Imperial Ethyl Gasoline will bring a noticeable operating improvement in any car, that we ask you to make three simple tests of this new and different "cold weather" gasoline.

1. Starting Test—Make your starting test difficult—preferably in the morning. Note the quicker start—even after a night in a cold garage.
2. Power Test on Hills—Tackle the steepest hill you know. Go all the way up in high gear. Try to make your engine knock!
3. Power Test in Traffic—Throttle down to a "crawl." Then feed the gas with a rush. Note the "pick-up" you get.

Compare the results of the above tests with the results you've had with any other gasoline. And keep in mind that the exceptional quick-starting ability and knockless power properties of Imperial Ethyl have been obtained without any sacrifice of mileage. This you can also prove by your own mileage check.

There's only one way to find out how good this new gasoline is. Try a tank-full of Imperial Ethyl. It costs 4 cents a gallon more, but you'll say it's worth it.

The unveiling of a memorial stone to the late Mrs. Annie Wolfson will take place at the cemetery of the Goei Zedec Synagogue, Jones Avenue, Sunday, November 7, 1926, at 3 p.m.

In loving memory of our dear father, Abraham Isaac Poslins, who departed this life November 8, 1922.

Time moves on and we're reminded,
Of a day our hearts were crushed;
When God took you, oh, so quickly,
And we all in gloom were thrust.

Yes, time may come and bring us changes,
Fresh with every coming year;
But your memory will be always cherished;
In the hearts that loved you dear.

Ever remembered, Joe and Dorothy.

Loved, remembered, longed for always.
Grandchildren, Wilfrid and Helen.

A Community Without Books

perative requirement of a certain of Jewish knowledge.

It is known that the Zionists have often thought of this matter. But when we speak of "Zionists" we might as well recognize that we are dealing only with a handful of active workers. And these are driven and harassed to the limit by the cry for money for Palestine.

The Hadaasah organization is in a similar predicament. It is an imposing organization. But the work, as in the case of all organizations and institutions, is left to a few tireless leaders. Perhaps if they were relieved of some of the burden of money-raising, the Hadaasah groups might have the necessary leisure for their truly worthy work of home-building, in the Jewish spirit, at home.

These two organizations—the Zionist and Hadaasah—are the ones that should ordinarily make it their business to provide a suitable library for the Jewish community. But being pre-occupied now with Palestinian effort, they can hardly be expected to undertake the task by themselves. There are countless other organizations in the city—not of national scope—which might well be expected to share the responsibility and the task.

We believe that a conference should be called of all Jewish organizations in the city to consider the project of equipping an adequate library for the forty thousand Jews of this city. The synagogues, the young people's societies, the Zionist organization, the Council of Jewish Women, the fraternal lodges, the radical groups—all these and many others should get together and join forces in the battle against ignorance. There is not a town anywhere in Canada with a fraction of the population of our local Jewish community, that has not a library. It is not to our credit to be without one in Toronto. It is hardly thinkable that a civilized community should be able to exist without a library.

To those who take pride in their community and are interested in its development, we respectfully suggest that it would be degrading for us to remain much longer a community without books.—A.B.B.

A NOTABLE ANNIVERSARY

Conservative Shalom, of Philadelphia, celebrated last week its one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary. It is the oldest Ashkenazic congregation on the American continent. During the one hundred and twenty-five years of its existence, it has had some noted rabbis. Chief among them are Dr. Marcus Jastrow, compiler of the Talmudic dictionary, and Dr. Henry Berkhowitz, founder of the Jewish Chautauque Society and author of many books. The congregation developed from rigid orthodoxy to conservatism and then to reform. About thirty-five years ago, when Dr. Berkhowitz became its leader, it moved definitely into the reform wing. Since that time all of its rabbis have been graduates of the Hebrew Union College and the Union Prayer Book has been used. The history of that congregation mirrors the history of Judaism in America its gradual evolution from ritualistic domination and its emancipation from precious though outworn religious practices. The religion of the Jew who steps out of the ghetto and comes into contact with secular thought must be changed. One cannot reconcile a medieval theology with the modern spirit. The history of Rodeph Shalom is valuable for it shows how the religious adjustment took place in a large and important congregation.

"CRAFTSMEN IN KEEPING THINGS NEW"

"Can you remove this stain?"—

THOUSANDS of times a year this anxious question is put to us. And few people realize the technical knowledge of fabrics and "tricks of the trade" required to say "yes" to such a question. The dry-cleaning process itself removes the surface soil and greasy marks. Our improved "Pure-N-White" solvent also gives sheen to the fabric and brightness to the colors. But then each garment must be gone over, inch by inch, and every spot and stain removed. Perspiration, tea, water, coffee, ice cream, grass, wine—there are a myriad causes of stains and each requires careful judgment and special treatment. It takes years to train a "spotter" (or "degraisseur," as they are called in Europe) and we pride ourselves on the fact that our organization of spotters is without an equal on the continent—in experience, knowledge, resources and equipment.

Confidence--the Keynote of Success

The knowledge that one is properly dressed creates that confidence which characterizes a successful man.

Collars that feel like a caress. The Van-Dusen and semi-soft made to rival the best starched collar.

Shirts that fit correctly. No bulging at neck or bosom. Cuffs turned evenly, and when necessary taken off and reversed.

Socks and Woollens with that soft, velvety feeling so much desired and only possible when a soap like "Ivory" is used.

Repairs—Every article the man wears kept in first-class condition, not merely "mending free."

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, mineral, water power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

For free copies write: H. A. MACDONELL, Director of Colonization, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario. "Please mention this paper."
